The Telephone Girl.

The telephone girl sits still in her chair and listens to voices from everywhere; she hears all the gossip, she hears all the news; she knows who is happy and who has the blues. She knows all our sorrows; she knows every girl who is chasing the boys. She knows of our troubles; she knows of our strife; she knows every man who is inclined to be "fast". In fact there's a secret beneath each sassy curl of the quiet, demure-looking telephone girl. If the telephone girl would tell all she knows it would turn half our friends into bitter foes. She could sow a small wind which would soon be a gale, engulf us in trouble and land us in jail. She could let go a story which, gaining in force, would cause half our wives to sue for divorce. She could get all our churches mixed up in a fight and turn all our days into sorrowing night; in fact she could keep the whole world in a stew, if she told a tenth part of the things that she knew. O, brother, doesn't it make your head whirl when you think what you owe to the telephone girl?—Exchange.

Alone in Saw Mill at Midnight

uninhabited, full of dampness, drafts the storm or cold, W. J. Atkins worked as night watchman at the Beaver Spring, Penn. Such experiences have cost him severe colds that settled on his lungs. At last he had to give up work. He tried many remedies but all failed until he used Dr. King's New Discovery. "After using one pothol," he writes, "I went back to work as well as ever." Severe colds, stubborn coughs, inflamed throats and sore lungs. Hemorrhaged. Croup and bronchitis. A specific remedy to promptly cure from this glorious medicine $5.00 and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Haydon & Robertson.

Bleached Flour Seized.

Washington Nov. 24.—Open defiance of millers of bleached flour to heed the government's warning to cease the manufacture of that article of food on pain of its being seized, has led Secretary of Agriculture Wilson to issue an order to inspectors of the department of agriculture to seize all of the bleached flour in the country. Information has been received that as a result of the action, fourteen consignments of bleached flour, comprising several hundred carloads, were seized up the week, ailing and sickly. Try them, 80c at Haydon & Robertson.

beside this: "I want to go on record as saying that I regard Electric Bitters as one of the greatest gifts that God has given to man," writes Mrs. O. Rhinehart, of Vestal Center, N. The next time one of the children catch cold, give it something that will promptly and freely but gently move the bowels. In that way the cold will at once be driven from the system. Kenner's Laxative Cough Syrup moves the bowels promptly and freely, gently and easily, and the same time irritates and stops the cough. It is especially good for children. Sold by Druggists, price 75c.

School Law.

The new school law to go into effect next March requires a public high school to be established in every county to be established in every county seat. This county will have to make arrangements to comply with the law. Our present public school is not of the high school grade, and plans will have to be made to bring it up to that grade, or suitable arrangements obtained elsewhere to conform with the law. State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. G. Crabb has just received from Attorney General James Brashoff an opinion, construing the law on several important points relating to the establishment of county high schools. The opinion was written by the Attorney General in response to a letter of inquiry from County Superintendent J. W. Rogers of Harrison County. Attorney General Brashoff says that it lies entirely within the discretion of the county board of education whether or not arrangements are made with a city high school or graded school for the establishment of a county high school. If a contract is entered into for the establishment of the county school, both parties are bound to carry it out. The law compels, however, that the first high school in the county must be at the county seat, in regard to the amount of indebtedness which the county is in reaching for a camphor-bottle on the mantie, the clothing of the girl became ignited from the open grate. There was no one in the room excepting herself at the time, and her first thought was to reach her mother who was in the yard some distance away. With her dress in flames she ran through the house out into the yard. Seeing her daughter enveloped in fire Mrs. Deering ran to her assistance, at the same time running to her husband who was at work in a field quite a distance away. The girl's clothing was quickly torn from her by her mother, but she had already been severely burned about the body. She was carried into the house, and two physicians hurriedly summoned. Upon their arrival they found that the girl had received fatal injuries, and sought to ease her sufferings as much as possible. Mrs. Deering's hands were painfully burned in extinguishing the flames, but the injuries are not of a serious nature.

The fearful accident came as a crushing blow to the parents of the girl and their grief was pitiable. They have the sympathy of the people generally in their sorrow.—Lebanon Enterprise.

Slayer of Prentiss Bobbitt Caught.

Marshad John Grace was sentenced early last week that Henry Stites Davison, the malito who shot and fatally wounded Prentiss Bobbitt in the Watton Hotel had been captured by the officers at Pineville, Ky., and was being held there. Marshal Grace left there for that point last Wednesday, and proceeded to bring the negro to Springfield to be tried. When it became known in Springfield that he had been captured considerable excitement was noticed, and the authorities here felt that it would be imprudent to bring him to this place. An order was accordingly sent from Circuit Judge L. H. Thurman, to officials at Lebanon to notify Mr. Grace to proceed to Louisville with the negro which he did and placed him in the Louisville jail. After the killing according to his own story, Davison left the hotel and ran through alleys to High Street and departed through the east part of the city. He went through Jaintown in the direction in which the bloodhounds had trailed him on the right of the murderer. The night was dark and the air damp and cold and the next night when he reached Gravel Switch, he was somewhat exhausted. During the night he built a fire alongside the railroad track and flagged a passing passenger train and going to the kitchen found a big burly negro with his foot caught fast in the trap. He was put in jail where he confessed to former robberies and implicated two others.—Elizabethtown News.

Mr. Tom Stoval, the well-known merchant of Mayfield and formerly a newspaper man of Elizabethtown captured a burglar in a steel trap. Mr. Stoval had recently been subjected to several robberies at his home. He finally set a great steel trap in a flour barrel in the kitchen window which had been left unlocked. He was awakened in the night by hints of pain and going to the kitchen found a big burly negro with his foot caught fast in the trap. He was put in jail where he confessed to former robberies and implicated two others.—Elizabethtown News.

The Loose Leaf Tobacco market has been a very pronounced success and it's expected the leading吸烟家 will lead the pack of its leading promoters. From the start the business has increased in volume until to day we have one of the leading Loose Leaf Markets in the State. The increase in the business from time to time has necessitated the installation of improved machinery and improved methods. The latest in this line was the formation of The Buyers and Warehousesmen's Association which was rendered necessary in order to be in the lead in so large a business. In the Association the members have adopted a code of rules and by-laws, by which they agree to abide. Under present regulations a person can't bid on tobacco on the market unless he pays a fee and becomes a member of the Association.

This places the warehouses on the same footing as warehouses in Louisville and other large cities. The mutual advantages of such rules to buyers, sellers and warehousemen can be readily seen, as it prevents "pinchlocking" and cuts out irresponsible buyers. A tobacco market to be a success must be conducted along business lines, and those methods that have been found, by long experience to fulfill the demands made upon such business are best.

A meeting of the Fourth District Democratic Congressional Committee has been called by District Chairman Sam T. Spalding to meet at the Old Inn in Louisville, Ky., on December 7th to determine the time, place and manner of nominating a candidate for Congress in the Fourth Kentucky District. The election of a Congressman will take place next fall, and it will soon be time that prospective candidates knew when and how nominations are to be made. However, judging from present prospects no contest is anticipated in the districts as Hon. Ben Johnson will be the unanimous choice of the Democrats of the district.

A night school for the men under twenty-five years of age has been established in the penitentiary at Frankfort. It is proposed to have the educated prisoners do the teaching under the supervision of the prison authorities. Henry Younce will be one of the teachers. The move is a good one and cannot but result in much good as the convicts will be prepared to make better citizens when released.

PUZZLE OF THE AIR.

Changing Currents Show by the Action of Bells in Flight.

The average person regards air much as regards water—as much lighter, of course, but like it otherwise. Calm air is precisely to him as calm water is to a person. If there is a bell picture in the air, he will be puzzled to know where it is.

It is a bell that is suspended in the air.

It is suspended in the air.

Roses and Repentance

By V. A. WAYNE

The sun shone warmly upon the banks of the Clinch, upon the tall pines and the great oaks and maples. In the soft, warm sunlight, the old man was reclining, with his back to the river, his hands clasped behind his head, his eyes closed, his thoughts turned to the quiet past.

There were sounds of growth in the air, the gift of fresh green among the fallen, and from a branch of the swaying dogwood a mocking bird was singing its delicious joy of the spring sunshine and flowers.

A white-haired negro came slowly around the cabin, grasping with both hands a large log, upon which a pine cone was broken. As he approached, there was a sudden commotion which spread quickly to the remote parts of the clearing and to the undergrowth beyond, and chicken of all sizes were seen flying hither and thither toward him with wings outstretched and feet scarce touching the ground. He scattered the food among them.

After the chickens had, with difficulty and with some difficulty, to be had, received all the food from the hand of the old man, he then sought a plank where the sunshine fell warm and unbroken and closed his eyes and slept out the day away.

There were sounds of dishes being washed in the cabin, the swish of a broom, the passing of a hot iron across a newly scrubbed cloth, the shout of the boy as he expected, joyfully, joyfully.

The day was not an ordinary one.

A bee leaned against the cabin, a mustard-yellow upon the green, and the door was still closed in. In a few moments the bee was broken. As he approached, there was a sudden commotion which spread quickly to the remote parts of the clearing and to the undergrowth beyond, and chicken of all sizes were seen flying hither and thither toward him with wings outstretched and feet scarce touching the ground. He scattered the food among them.

After the chickens had, with difficulty and with some difficulty, to be had, received all the food from the hand of the old man, he then sought a plank where the sunshine fell warm and unbroken and closed his eyes and slept out the day away.

No time came to resume work this morning, so it was evident that something out of the ordinary was going on.

Presently a dusky young face appeared at the window.

"Hey, gran'pa!" a shrill, childish voice called. "Mammy say fo' yo' to come in yo' to clean shut. Yo' gwine do up fose yo' wak' stoker."

"I know, I know," Washington declared. "As he went in a troop of six picked almanes came tumbling out, all boys but one. A pecuniary voice followed them.

"Now, down yo' chillins go far off. Goo's yo' gran'pa's done fix yo' gwine be fix too, now, min."

At one end of the cabin a rose bush clambered up and about the low wall, and as the boys began to understand this, keeping an inquiring look upon their sister the while. But not until one of their hands reached slyly toward the blossoms did Rose did say notice. "Stop dat, Washington! Ain' yo' member dat mammy say all den roses gwine be fix fo' Aye! Cellar's man."

"But new ones done bloom almane, mammy say dat," extolled Washington pertinently. "Sides, hit's 'manicipation' more's jen' man."

"I don't keer. Dat's what mammy say, an' yo' know mammy ain't say one ting twice."

"Yo' gwine be tellite, Macie?" scolded Rose.

"No, I ain' gwine be tellite. But dat's what mammy say, an' yo' know mammy mighty set on what she say. Yo' know dat, don't you?"

Washington looked doubtfully at his comings and from them back to the roses.

"Dey gwine look mighty nice on we all new clo's," he said wistfully, "an' dat's what mammy say, man for dat's what she say. All den boys been workin' on de durin' time. Mammy ain' gwine ear' for one rose we for all we all 'manicipation' Yo' know dat, Macie."

Macie had no answer, and Washington went on with his work.

"Yo' know dat two nickel' I done make tolin' Lige Macie. Well, I gwine spell all den 'weet stoff, an' yo' gwine help half. An', sides, yo' a' about had me fine a' deng' o' den roses pinned on yo' blue blace. Yo' s'wordly world."
